True as Steel.
Lock, Cal., Jan. 10th, 1879.
HALL'S SAFE AND LOCK CO., San Francisco, Cal.—GENTS—One night last week (Dec. 31, 1878), some cracksmen broke into my store for the purpose of robbing my Hall's Patent Fire and Burglar-proof Safe, purchased of you some time since. They were, however, apparently satisfied to give it up as a bad job. After tampering with the lock, which they found impossible to pick, their efforts were directed against the burglar-proof box construction, which they supposed knew contained money and valuables. A piece of iron about as large as my hand was first cut out from one side of the safe; drills were then sent in against the burglar box, evidently to test the question whether or not the box could be drilled and powder injected. Their drills failed to make any impression whatever upon the steel box, and these worthless efforts forced to abandon their undertaking. From the artistic manner in which these pirates attacked my safe, I am satisfied that they were professional cracksmen who understand their business.
Your Safe proved itself to be what you claimed for it: Fire and Burglar-Proof.
I cordially commend your manufacture of Safes to public favor. Yours, very truly, Feb. 11-19 C. O. IVORY.

The prompt action taken by the trustees of our agricultural society in lending the relief committee full use of their property, suggests to us another probable effect of the fire. The society has been built up and largely maintained by our citizens. If we have received aid from the good men of Storey, Ormsby and other counties, it is cheerfully acknowledged, and Washoe county has always desired that every portion of the state should feel itself interested, and derived the greatest possible benefits from the workings of the society. To say that institutions of this order has a hard road to travel, is only to admit the experience of every state in the Union. Our citizens remembering the first days of this organization, and knowing how hard it has been to secure the societies welfare have naturally felt proud of the property which has grown up about them, and the signs, everywhere visible, that the society was working out good results for the state. Through dark days they have followed its fortunes and although a state institution in the public sense, its own members have shouldered its burdens. After the hard times of the past year another hour of need was coming for the society, and our citizens were moving themselves for another struggle, satisfied that the state must at last recognize its legitimate property and help to relieve it. The society has never restricted its benefits, but its resources have always been limited to a section. Its usefulness has always been broad as the state, and the fact should be admitted. Our citizens have done much to build up an institution which is already a source of pride. They have always come to its rescue in times of need, and they were preparing to rescue it from danger once more. After the disaster of yesterday they cannot do so. It is simply an impossibility. Shall all that has been done go for naught? Will the state suffer one of its most useful possessions to pass away for want of the help which has been too long delayed now? We have done what we could; we would have done more but that is now impossible. Let the legislature decide whether an earnest and unselfish labor like this shall be of no avail because some scores of honest men and worthy citizens find the prosperity and industry of years swept away. We call the immediate and earnest attention of our representatives to this subject.

SHALL WE INCORPORATE?

If yesterday's hard experience conveys any lesson, we should try to profit by it, though it may seem like a very small needle in an enormous haystack. The necessity of incorporation is more evident than ever. A town government should at once be organized, and fire limits established, inside of which no wooden house should be allowed, unless, perhaps, redwood houses under certain conditions, might be permitted. Stovepipes should be inspected, and none allowed to run through the roof, and the rubbish lying about the alleys should be cleaned out meticulously. The GAZETTE has been comparatively silent upon this important subject for the reason that certain members asserted that a general law was to be introduced, which would permit any town to incorporate. In case of its failure a special act was to be put through for our benefit. The session is nearing its end, and we advise our citizens to insist upon this matter without delay.

The President has vetoed the anti-Chinese bill as had been expected. The veto has been predicted so often by the "Tribune" and "Herald" that we were prepared for it. The citizens of this county, however, were not prepared for the totally insufficient reasons which the President assigns for his action. Perhaps we do not know our own business in this part of the Union.

No docks. The boards have not adjourned on account of the Reno fire, but the telegraphic communications are rather primitive and the company has not given the reports to us. To tell the truth William has a fish tub for a seat and a nail bag for his table, and uses a hairpin for sending messages. Most of our readers will have other things besides stocks to think of for awhile.

The Origin, Cause and History of the Fire!

The Charred Remains of Five Bodies Found in the Ruins—Three Wayfarers and One Old Lady Perished in the Flames!

The Entire Business Portion of Reno a Crumbling Ruin!

The terrible fire which yesterday morning swept the best part of Reno before it like the stubble of the field, will be the principle subject of thought and conversation for weeks to come, and in devoting a large space to it the GAZETTE merely places on record that which is only too well known to its readers. There seems to be no room for generalizing. A spark, a large collection of houses and a terrific gale of wind are all that are necessary at any time to produce a great calamity and the fault seems to lie as much in the fate as in personal carelessness. No report could portray the

A FIRE IN A FILE OF WOOD, containing about a cord, which stood in a rank against the tenement house behind the Railroad house, where she slept. She sprang to the back door of her room which led to the yard where a barrel of wash-water stood near the burning wood, but through excitement and weakness she was unable to open it. She gave the alarm, however, and Mary Ann McCormick ran across the bridge, over the alley from the Railroad House, quickly followed by John Hogan, Ellen McCormick and John Hayes from the house, and Josh Laws, Mr. Richardson and others from the outside. There was no fire in the Railroad House or the tenement house at the time of the alarm. The latter was a pine house 20x45 feet, two stories high with eleven rooms up stairs and six down, all vacant, but the four in which Mrs. Pat Hogan was living.

THE WIND was blowing hard from the southwest and fanned the spark into instant conflagration. The fire swept under the houses and all over it in a few seconds, and never stopped going until it had eaten its way through the town and out into the sagebrush to the east. The occupants of the Railroad House ran across the plaza to Shaw's Hotel. One poor woman in her bare feet carrying her nine days old babe in her arms. As the fire spread and grew in intensity and volume, the wind increased, and shingles and sparks rained down on the portion of the town lying in its path. Sheets of flying fire were torn off the burning mountain, and lit blocks away, wrapping themselves around their doomed victims with deadly effect. In one hour the fire was flying in full vigor from Hagerman's corner to the pluming mill, over three blocks away, back to Second street, and across the track, taking in Smith's Academy of Music, the three great warehouses, and the Depot Hotel. When the last train went turned the corner of Poor's ranch the night was an appalling one for Reno passengers. Among whom were M. C. Lake, Louis Dean, and others. The Baptist church was throwing up a blaze as high as Brother Arnold's prayers used to go, and the smoke was rolling up from the whole south side as though all of Reno's sins were being wiped out by a fiery atonement. From the other side of the car a blaze could be seen between the new Catholic school building and the GAZETTE office. People northeast of town for miles were showered with flying shingles and sparks which set fire in a great many places. James Sullivan's corral and hay barn were burned three miles away. At P. J. Kelly's ranch two and a half miles away the fire, sparks and smoke mixed with dust and flying sand, enveloped everything and promised to consume the entire inflammable portion of the estate. At B. F. Lee's ranch one mile from town all the loose and outside hay was consumed and two valuable bulls were suffocated. One of them was as fine a Durham as there was in this country and was valued at a thousand dollars. Mr. Lee lost his horse early in the day but he thinks it was done by a spark from his own chimney. He lives four miles from town and a little south of the track from the sparks. Many in Reno who saw the fire supposed it was caught from the flying debris but such is not the opinion of Mr. Ross. Sweeping over acres of ground, with NO NOTE OF WARNING the fire caught several people in its dreadful embrace and probably before they realized their awful danger, life was extinguished. Early in the day rumors of great loss of life were flying about the streets. It was said at one time that Mrs. J. J. Quinn was missing; that Dave McFarland was severely burned and Joe Crews fatally; that J. L. McFarland was run through with the sharp prong of a fireman's ladder; that Mrs. John Beck was burned to death and many others hurt and killed. Happily all these rumors proved to be unfounded or greatly exaggerated except the one concerning Mrs. Beck, which was only too true.

THE CHARRED REMAINS of the poor old lady were found lying near her kitchen stove, an unrecognizable mass. Later in the day three limbless trunks were found lying within two or three feet of each other in the ashes of John Boyd's barn in the corner of the Reno Lumber company's yard. The hands and one body remained and their small size and the size of the bodies seemed to establish the fact that they were boys who had crept into the hay to sleep. Their names and history will probably always remain unknown. Towards evening word came in that a body, apparently that of an Indian, had been discovered in the remains of Forbes flour mill. So far as heard from, these are the only fatalities of the awful day, although numberless accidents and narrow escapes occurred and nearly everyone who took part in the fight got face, hands, hair and eyes burned. Many were almost blinded by the smoke and heat, and went to bed in darkened rooms as soon as they dared to leave the field. A few may their tribe decrease—drunk to excess and staggered about the streets in a silly state or tried to quarrel with each other. Men should be men at times like that, as nerves already under tension give way if loaded with stupefying drugs. It was strongly hoped that the flames which licked up the tight frame houses and back fences on COMMERCIAL ROW would by good fortune be withstood by the good brick walls and tin roof of Fredrick's, Lechman's and Shoemaker's buildings, but those hopes proved delusive. After two hours of roasting the smoke began to pour out of Fredrick's and Pinniger's rooms and little playful tongues of flame soon followed. The roof gave way enough to allow free play for the mass of fire which was now rolling the good things on Pinniger's shelves and the valuable in Fredrick's show cases under its thousand tongues. Free play it went at its work like a young giant at base ball. For hours it kept at its work until nothing was left but burned brick walls and twisted iron beams. D. & B. Lechman's clothing store was in one of the finest rooms in town and the building was supposed to be fire proof, but when the line between flammable and inflammable at times like that. The thick walls absorbed the heat and all inside was soon ablaze. Osborne & Shoemaker, next door, with two floors and a warehouse filled with the finest stock of drugs, medicines and fancy articles in the state became convinced that their store was gone and like

RAVE MEN they stood by and saw their years of honest toil wiped out like figures on a slate. McKee & Matheson stood next with a stock of drugs and medicines which represented their earthly all and saw it go up in smoke. S. N. Davidson, one of Reno's finest business men had the east half of the room filled with jewelry and silver ware and when after watching for hours to catch a glimpse of the first fiery messenger which bore the news of ruin through the massive iron doors, he was relieved from all uncertainty by the burning flames with something of the emotions of the doomed murderer, who is the most collected and apparently best satisfied of the party at his execution. Barnett's bro, fine stock of clothing in their brick store on the corner afforded brief sport to the passer-by. Like a thermometer at play it gave a tone and the ruin was complete. At his age Mr. Barnett's loss is especially hard and the sympathy of his younger fellow sufferers are with him. Down

WEST OF VIRGINIA STREET was rolling up toward Heaven in vapor and flame chunk a of burning wood and flying fire swept across a block and a half and kindled Coats' Pollard hotel, and soon all between those points and on beyond was in the grasp of the hungry fire. He clasped Chamberlain's tall frame hotel in his arms and entwined his fingers around the cupola and cornice like a lover toying with his sweetheart's tangles. Burning both east and west it took the International at one end and C. H. Merrill's restaurant at the other of the block between Virginia and Sierra streets. The fire attacked the fireproof buildings of Manning & Duck, Bender's bank, Chelovich and Judge Marshall. The Ahcave went early, Dave McFarland working like a beaver to save his people. White & Block's saloon went out like a candle.

THE BRICKS began to size, and Prescott, Jamison and Abrahams invoiced zero. Manning & Duck had been through two good-sized fires, and thought they were safe, so safe indeed, that they had never taken a dollar of insurance. Too late the mistake was apparent. Their pitched roof went first and the iron one next and the day was lost for them. After sometime their powder bags began to melt and the cartridges to explode like rattling musketry on other, but hardly deadlier fields than this. Sweeping and surging, tossed and fanned by the fearful wind which never blew so hard in Washoe, the fire found its richest feast in the stores of Manning, Myers, Abrahams, Jamison and Prescott on which Chelovich's liquors seemed to pour like oil. Bender's and Hammersmith's traps helped the matter a little, and bog after lighter materials had been digested the heat came out from here like a gigantic furnace. Mr. Manning cannot give an entire estimate until he can get into his safe and see how his books come out. He would have been sore loser to-morrow as the papers would then have been turned over to him as it is the Duck estate loss half. In the way of diversion it licked up Mrs. Hoo's house and stooped down long enough to set Mrs. Beck's to blazing with a suddenness which caught the poor mistress in its dreadful toils.

ACROSS THE TRACK. The Virginia and Truckee warehouse was just the playing for our new raging destroyer. He went at it with a will to show what he could do. Skipping along the pine pavement, he took in the Central Pacific sheds, full of costly freight, and D. W. Earl's forwarding warehouse, which contained much valuable machinery and grain, and a fine printing press owned by Tyrell & Reese. The Academy of Music, north of the wide plaza, got a nibble next and was tossing old dry jokes to the clouds in an instant. The row of dwellings east of Virginia street were merely a momentary digression. The Catholic school was the real object of attack, and all the little houses at its feet were simply bait thrown out for it by the fiery devil. The Catholic church stood well, but went at last. The sisters moved into a little brown house a block away and left their school building to be devoured. The new building was closely watched and as soon as a spark felt it was bounced. It dried up times the fire but was not so often put out. All the scaffolding was taken down and everything done that could have effect towards saving the building. Thanks to the almost salamander properties of the new wood, success attended the faithful workers, and the new school building still stands. Our devout Catholic friends were doubly thankful. Not a few of them looked with eyes of faith to the beautiful passion cross which was raised to the highest point on the cupola on Saturday. The sisters were supplied with creature comforts from the Episcopal seminary.

Dr. Hogan's house and the new pavilion fortunately stood out of the track of the fire and escaped.

THE LOSSES cannot be calculated to a nicety to-day, but enough is known to prove that there is nearly half a million of loss outside of insurance, which will foot up nearly three hundred thousand dollars. About fifty families are homeless and there will, no doubt, be many who will need assistance. A large quantity of bedding and provisions have already been placed at the disposal of the destitute. In destruction to property and loss of life, as well as in a business point of view, the fire far surpasses either of the former fires in Reno. Better buildings had grown up and larger transactions were carried on. Better stocks of goods of all kinds were kept than ever before. In addition to this times were easier than they are now, and money not nearly so hard to get. Take it all in all, but few communities in the history of the coast have suffered more severely in proportion to their means than this one.

Losses and Insurance. The following are the losses as near as can be ascertained, together with the insurance thereon. A great deal of property does not figure in this list, as the owners and figures could not be gotten in time: W. R. Chamberlain loses the Depot hotel, valued at $25,000. It was insured in the Home Mutual for $50,000; in the Liverpool Life and Globe for $25,000, and in the Fireman's Fund of San Francisco, for $25,000. I. Fredrick, jeweler, $9,000; no insurance. C. S. Martin, real estate agent, three houses, $14,080; no insurance. F. H. Chase, two stores on Virginia street and three dwellings with furniture $8,000; insured for $1,300 in the New Zealand. The Fire To-day. About 11:45 this morning the cry of fire was again raised, and the alarm bell called our citizen's to Mon Lee's wash-house on Virginia street where a lively little blaze was in progress. The prompt response, however, prevented the destroying element from gaining any headway. The water was in fact applied so soon and in such generous quantities that the Chinamen had to wait in order to begin the work of repairing. The loss was very slight. The fire was caused by the general Chinese custom of heating their stores without regard to the surrounding woodwork. A general inspection of the washhouses outside of Chinatown would do no harm.

BUSINESS MEN ALREADY TALKING OF RESUMPTION.

Locations of Temporary and Permanent Places of Business.

Herac Greely said that the only way to resume was to resume. It will be seen by the appended list that Reno did not lose much yesterday with the immense amount of taxable property which was destroyed.

The postoffice is located on Plaza street three doors east of the GAZETTE office.

The express office is located temporarily in a freight car at the corner of Commercial Row.

The railroad telegraph office occupies a passenger car at the same corner.

The Western Union telegraph office is located in Frank Bell's house, Sierra street near Second.

Charlie Chase has opened his saloon in Updike & Clark's paint shop, on Second street near Virginia.

L. Abrahams goes below immediately for a large stock of goods, and will open out with a carload of necessities by Thursday next.

L. J. Flint has his butcher shop on Virginia street opposite the Savings Bank, and is preparing to build near the Odd Fellows' Hall.

George H. Fogg has already rebuilt the People's market temporarily, and serves his customers as usual to-day.

G. Schaefer, who was untouched by the fire, says that his shop near the GAZETTE office has meat to sell or give away.

D. A. Bender & Co. are building inside their walls an office sufficient for present needs, and will rebuild about this temporary concern as fast as possible.

Morris Ash has secured quarters for his saloon corner Virginia and Second streets.

Henry Rhue has opened his meat market in the old Record office on Sierra street.

Lumber is in demand to-day and within the week we shall, no doubt, see rows of temporary business houses established over the ruins. There are still others, no doubt, whose energy is worthy of mention to-day, but the confusion renders accuracy nearly impossible.

R. E. Queen is already prepared to furnish drugs, medicines, etc. under the Journal office.

W. Lee, the barber, is putting up a shanty and will be ready for business right away.

Miss Harney gives notice to her patrons that she will receive them at Mrs. Hay's residence on Centre Street, and attend to their wants as usual.

J. J. Becker will open a saloon about 12, m. to-morrow in Buncel's blacksmith shop.

M. T. Coats from the ruins of the Pollard House, will resume business very shortly in the Buncel house, Plaza street.

Block & Ash's have started a saloon on the corner of Virginia and Second streets. They started yesterday, in fact.

C. H. Merrill has taken Comstock's house and is ready for a dozen boarders.

Gray & Isaacs, the well known dry goods men, will reopen in Sanders & Neale's on Monday next.

A Pitty Discourse.

Yesterday, while the fire was still sweeping away the wealth of our citizens, a throng gathered at the Ocean Spray Saloon, which was then the only place where there was material for the thirsty ones. They rattled the doors, and with much earnestness called upon the house to open. They wanted to drink what was left before it burned. They received no answer from Bill Stopher, the proprietor, who was inside. Again they made through the door a demand for their favorite beverages. Although there was money in sight, Stopher very promptly stepped out on the sidewalk, and delivered a brief address, which was something like this:

You fellows just keep your money in your pockets. The fire's still burning. I can't see that you've done very much wasting. Go back there and do a little work. When the fire's out, you can come to the Ocean Spray and order what you want.

Then William Stopher emphasized his remarks with a volley of fire adjectives, and locked his door. He will not lose anything by the delivery of that sermon.

Flinders.

Constable George Avery saw two men run off with a trunk which had been left in front of Nelse Hammond's yard, and thinking they meant to steal its contents, followed in company with another man. The fellows ran down Second street until near the flames, when they broke the trunk open with a stone and hurried off with the contents. Avery and his companion overtook one of the thieves who made a stout resistance, but was finally subdued. By the time the officers had mastered their captive, his partner had made good his escape in the clouds of smoke and dust. The captured thief is now lying in jail.

Food and Clothing.

All those needing food, clothing, or lodging will apply to Mr. A. Drabms or Mr. Martin; or at the Pavilion. The committee will canvass the town and parties will confer a favor by sending their names early.

Dentistry.

Dr. Sheets & Wagar, the well-known dentists are ready for business in the Odd Fellows' building. They have rented a room up stairs and will attend to everything in the line of their profession as usual.

OUR GENEROUS NEIGHBORS.

PUBLIC MEETINGS AND LIBERAL DONATIONS.

No Danger of Starving or Freezing.

As soon as the news of Reno's awful affliction spread over the country all who were within a helping distance immediately began to adopt measures of relief. Special trains arrived two hours after the fire started, bringing water cars from Truckee and helping hands from

ALL ALONG THE LINE.

Men from Truckee, Boca, Bronco, Verdi and nearly every other place on the road came in, not as lookers on in Vienna, but ready and willing to take hold and work with us to save life and property. A train arrived from Carson a little after noon, making the run in very quick time, bringing down Mr. Yerington, D. A. Bender, Judge Harris and others. Their sympathetic grasp and words of cheer were very grateful to the tired and discouraged men who had been through such a hard experience just before. All the visitors manifested a desire to be useful and requested parties to let them know what could be done to alleviate suffering. Early in the day Sam Davis, of the Virginia Chronicle, arrived on horseback and spent the forenoon in distributing coffee to the working throng out of a big tin bucket.

THE NEWS IN VIRGINIA.

created a feeling of the deepest sympathy which resulted in a mass meeting called by Mayor Belknap to meet at 2:30 at the city hall. At the appointed hour the room was full and the meeting called to order. J. C. Currie was elected chairman. A committee of ten was appointed to solicit supplies and subscriptions of coin. Bishop Whitaker, Dr. Johnson and T. A. Stephens was appointed to come down last night with the supplies on hand and with orders to telegraph for whatever else was needed to-day. These gentlemen brought on last night's train enough to feed all who could possibly be suffering. To-day they telegraphed for mattresses, dress goods, children's clothing, ladies' underwear, bread, etc., which are being gathered by the committee in Virginia. If the kind people there could visit our pavilion and see the men and women their has relieved, their efforts would be rewarded many times over. Some of our best citizens have not a change of clothing. Men and women whose only previous acquaintance with charity has been as assistants now come as subjects, and see for the first time the beauties of the giving hand of the heavenly maid. That any should go hungry is impossible. Even though we depend so entirely upon ourselves we still have enough to prevent suffering, but at such a time as this it seems as though some help was almost absolutely necessary to prevent complete demoralization and discouragement. One of the sweetest experiences of human life, one of the compensations for dire misfortune is the sympathy and brotherly sentiments aroused in all that bear the form of man. In the midst of her crushing sorrow Reno recognizes the noble charity of her sister city, and thanks her as much for the speed with which the offering came as for the thing itself. God bless the generous souls who so freely poured out their purses for our needy ones.

CLOTHING, BLANKETS, PROVISIONS AND COOKED FOOD.

Cheep Labor.

Yesterday morning when there was still much work to do and the firemen were about exhausted, it became necessary to man the hand-engine in order to prevent the further spread of the fire in the direction of the bridge. The engine was posted near the old alkambers building, and the usual number of jabbering Chinamen and Indians were standing about where they could be directly in the way with least trouble to themselves. At this juncture it was a question of labor more than talent as the citizens were either exhausted or employed in saving property. A. M. Lamb, J. C. Smith and Updike solved the problem with three clubs. In four minutes you could not see the engine for the crowd of busy spectators on the brakes. Some of these had small bruises on various parts of their bodies to be sure, but they worked energetically and the engine responded. There was a corner in Chinatown last night in arctic, and the Chinese doctor feels thankful to Smith and Lamb for their persuasive powers. The community will also be thankful for the generous contribution of labor from our resident Chinese.

A Stabbing Affray.

About 4 o'clock in the evening an affray took place in front of the Central hotel, on Plaza street, between Robert Branton and Tim Hickey, in which the former received a cut on the left side of the head with a pocket knife. The knife split the lower part of the ear open and went into the flesh behind it, but did not inflict a dangerous wound, although it bled very profusely. The wounded man was carried into the Pacific hotel and Dr. T. N. Snow called in to dress the wound. Hickey was arrested a few minutes after the cutting, and placed in the county jail for safe keeping.

Public schools will reopen next Monday.

N. S. A. M. &amp; M. SOCIETY.

Prompt and Generous Action of the Trustees.

A meeting of the trustees of the Nevada State Agricultural Mining & Mechanical society was held at the pavilion to-day. Present, Trustees Stevenson, Longley and Bragg. After some preliminary discussion regarding the necessities of Reno and the use of society property by the relief committee, the following business was transacted.

Mr. Longley moved that the office of secretary be declared vacant. Carried.

On motion of Mr. Bragg P. B. Comstock was elected to fill the vacancy. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved: That the N. S. A. M. & M. Society, in view of the terrible calamity by which one hundred families have been left homeless in Reno, hereby tenders to the relief committee the use of the new pavilion for the distribution of such supplies as may be sent to Reno for the relief of our people.

It was agreed that Mr. P. B. Comstock should lend his personal services in furtherance of the spirit of this resolution.

No further business coming before the meeting, the board adjourned to meet at the call of the president.

A VILLAIN UNHUNG.

A Note of Warning for His Class.

This afternoon about 2:30 D. McFarland and wife were looking about the ruins of the Arcade in hopes that they might find some of the valuable jewelry lost by Mrs. McFarland in the fire. Mr. McFarland was looking about in the cellar for signs of the articles, and his wife stood above looking on. After finding quite a lot of fragments Dave passed them up to the lady, who wrapped them in a handkerchief and deposited them in the pocket of her doorman. She was still overlooking the search, when feeling a jerk at her pocket she turned quickly and discovered a tramp near by in the act of pocketing the valuables.

A scream from Mrs. McFarland brought Dave quickly to the sidewalk and he collared the thiefing scoundrel without more ado. The culprit was delivered to constable Avery and placed in jail. Tar and feathers were prominent subjects of street conversation this afternoon, and even a worse fate was promised the next thief who might be detected. The GAZETTE believes in law and order, it also warns all tramps that if they wish to remain in the business that they had better be a little careful. Any man who will steal from those who are already homeless ought to be rewarded speedily.

The Burning of Mrs. Beck.

Was one of the curious and horrible incidents of the holocaust. Old Mother Beck, as she was called, was a noted character in Reno. She and her husband kept a little store on Commercial Row, opposite the Pollard house, and were celebrated for their sharp trades and grasping natures. It appears that her death was the direct result of this trait. At the time the alarm was given the fire was more than two blocks distant from her store, but her desire to save her possessions prevented her from making her escape, which she could have easily done. Her husband says she and himself kept at work until the flames reached the house when he ran out, calling her to follow. Instead of running out she called him to come back and get something. That was the last of her alive. Her charred remains were found in the ruins, just last. She was a native of Erfurt, Saxony, and aged about 70 years.

Never Say Die.

No one would have believed that a town the size of Reno could suffer the loss of a million of dollars in money and cash property and survive, and yet we believe such to be the case. The footings of yesterday's fire will be in the figures far above half a million and the consequential damages will run far above a quarter of a million. Instead of yielding to the spirit of despondency, however, our citizens have already begun preparations for new business. We have a cheerful and worthy example set us by our friends upon the mountain, who are so freely sending us the necessities. Let all deal as gently as possible with their unfortunate neighbors, and by carrying each other as much as possible, the crisis will soon pass over, and the old prosperity return. Cheerful industry will accomplish wonders.

Water Works.

Yesterday's fire underlines and emphasizes the GAZETTE's remarks in Saturday's editorial column upon the Highland ditch with letters of flame, and with the lives of men. That ditch, if it had been opened to the seminary, would have given us water and pressure for fifty nozzles, each one better a hundred per cent. than any steam fire engine or hand pump we could bring on the ground. The principal owners in this enterprise, we understand, are D. and B. Lachman and Mr. Hill of the old water works. Bishop Whitaker has an interest, and would do a good share toward putting it through. As soon as possible this line should be finished and our safety rendered less uncertain.

Bank Notice.

C. T. Bender, of D. A. Bender & Co., informs the GAZETTE, at press hour, that he will be ready for business to-morrow (Tuesday) at 9 A. M.

FRIENDS IN NEED.

Charitable Words and Deeds from All Directions.

James H. Kinkadee has been added to the relief committee and will act as treasurer.

Dispatches were received from Carson to-day, stating that $10,000 had been appropriated by the legislature for the relief of our destitute.

Virginia City has already raised and forwarded $2000 worth of necessities, and $6000 in coin will be forth coming. It would take 6000 panics in the stock market to lessen the proverbial generosity of the Comstock.

Roundtree & McClure, wholesale grocers of Fourth street, San Francisco, have telegraphed Hagerman & Schoelling: "Deliver to relief committee $50 worth of groceries, and draw on us for the amount."

M. Lippman has received telegrams from San Francisco asking what we want.

R. S. Osborne has received telegrams from Crane & Brigham, wholesale druggists, asking how much we need; also calling on Osborne & Shoemaker to send in their orders for stock.

The Nevada State Agricultural, Mining and Mechanical Society is giving the relief committee every facility which its property and organization affords. P. B. Comstock, secretary of the society, has been stationed at the pavilion for this purpose.

A box of boiled hams have arrived from the International Hotel, Virginia. It was marked, "For those who can appreciate a good article."

About fifty families are taking advantage of the relief which is afforded at the pavilion building.

Accidents.

Joe Crews, of Crews & Illidge, was very seriously burned in the Opera House Billiard Parlors, which the firm had just furnished in magnificent style. A GAZETTE reporter visited Mr. Crews to-day and learned from him the particulars of the accident.

At the alarm Mr. Crews ran to the saloon and soon saw the danger that threatened his property. He then went to work with a will, to save what he could. He passed a large lot of wines, liquors and cigars out of the back door, and was surprised in the midst of his work by the flames. Seeing that it was time to leave, Joe still thought he could return for some valuable papers which still remained. He made his errand as quickly as possible, but upon reaching the middle of the room he found the heat to be intense. The flames were already consuming the front part, and the back entrance was hidden partially by a volume of smoke. Mr. Crews, half suffocated by the smoke, still thought it best to seek egress by the back door. Upon penetrating the smoke, however, he was blinded and fell over a billiard table. He then determined that he must go through the flames or be burned in the building. Placing his hands over his face, he made the dash and succeeded in reaching the sidewalk, only to fall again upon a blazing woodpile. He was rescued from this furnace by Sunderland's foreman. Mr. Crews is very severely burned about the head, neck and upper part of his body. It is doubly cruel that one should lose both prosperity and health at one fell stroke, and the community sympathize heartily with the sufferer. With returning strength Joe will again, it is hoped, be one of our most thrifty and popular business men.

The Casualties.

Only five persons are known to have perished in the fire, though there are rumors of two others. The names of the three men who were burned in John Boyd's stable could not be learned. They had been coming to the stable for three or four nights to sleep, and were strangers here. There are no clues to the identification of the parties, unless a watch and some shirt studs found with the unrecognizable remains should answer the purpose. Nothing is known of how they came to be burned, except that they were known to be sleeping in the barn, and were found burned to a crisp after the building had become a prey to the flames. The fourth person that perished in the flames is generally supposed to be an Indian. The remains were found in the ruins of the State Flouring Mills, and were beyond recognition. The skull and other anatomical peculiarities led to the conclusion that it was an Indian. An outline of how she met her fate will be seen elsewhere. Nobody was seriously burned or injured except Joe Crews.

Quick Work.

The special train from Carson, which brought Messrs. Yerington, Bender, Bragg and others to the fire, ran fifty miles an hour during the trip.

The fire train came from Truckee to Verdi at about the same rate.

The bill appropriating $10,000 for the relief of our destitute passed the legislature in twenty minutes.

Good for Virginia.

A meeting to devise means for the relief of the citizens of Reno was held in Virginia yesterday evening. Ex-mayor Corrie presided, and it was resolved to extend all the assistance possible. A later dispatch instructs the relief committee to draw on Virginia for an unlimited amount.

Found.

J. M. Scott informs us that he found yesterday part of a fine buggy harness. The owner can have his property by applying at the Arlington Avenue Nurseries. We commend Mr. Scott's example as worthy of imitation.

A Citizens' R. 12 if Committee.

In pursuance to call, a special meeting of the citizens was held at Mr. Cain's office, Odd Fellows building, last evening at 7 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by Mr. C. A. Bragg, who briefly stated the object of the meeting. On motion, Hon. W. M. Boardman was elected chairman, and Rev. W. R. Jenvey, secretary. A committee of five, consisting of Rev. C. H. McKelvey, Rev. W. R. Jenvey, Rev. Mr. Drabms, Mr. Martin, and Mr. Knox, was then appointed to act as a Relief Committee. This committee organized with Mr. McKelvey as chairman, Mr. Jenvey as secretary, and Mr. Knox as treasurer. The pavilion building offered as head quarters of the Relief Committee, it was selected for that purpose. Dispatches were then read from Bishop Whitaker and other gentlemen from Virginia saying that a carload of provisions would be down on the evening train. The relief committee were instructed to meet the train and receive the supplies.

Sheriff Walker informed the meeting that he had fifteen special policemen appointed as watchers, and that he considered the town as well guarded. On motion of Mr. Chamberlain, Messrs. J. A. Fraser, Flanagan, and D. J. Davidson were appointed as a committee of three to meet up destitute persons. Hon. C. C. Stephenson, of Gold Hill, expressed the sympathy of Virginia and Gold Hill in a neat little speech, and promised all the supplies that would be needed. Hon. Jerry Schelling also stated that a movement was on foot in Carson. The relief committee were instructed to be on hand at 8 A. M. and prepare for the distribution of provisions. On motion the meeting stood adjourned.

Books and Papers.

S. N. Davidson's safe was found in the ruins after the fire, with its contents entirely destroyed. Mr. Davidson says he does not know whether it was left open or whether the heat warped it open.

I. Frederick had two safes in his store. The contents of one was found uninjured. The contents of the other were badly damaged.

The contents of the safe of D. A. Bender & Co. were well preserved. M. Nathan's safe was ruined. The coin melted and the papers totally destroyed.

The papers in the Farmers' Cooperative safe were badly scorched although the contents were preserved well enough to be of use.

Davidson's safe with the entire contents was a total loss.

Pinniger's safe stood the fire well and all the contents were saved.

The books and papers in Manning's safe, although badly scorched, were saved.

The contents of E. Meyer's safe were entirely destroyed.

D. McFarland's safe stood the fire well, and the contents were saved notwithstanding a slight scorching.

The safe of W. R. Chamberlain's hotel was not harmed although the outside door was left open.

Winchell & Cunningham's safe stood the fire. The door-knobs were melted off.

The contents of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s safe were found untouched, but it was hard to open.

Morris Ash's safe, although badly damaged, saved its contents. This is its third fire.

The contents of Chas. Knust's safe were supposed to be all right, although it had not been opened up to the hour of going to press.

White & Blocks safe was badly damaged in being opened. The contents were badly destroyed. Nothing of particular value was in it.

Personal.

Sam Davis, of the Chronicle; E. J. Parkinson, of the Tribune and other reporters were in town yesterday gathering fire items.

Capt. G. G. Lyon, Governor Kinkadee's private secretary; A. A. Lewis, D. A. Bender, H. M. Yerington, A. C. Bragg, J. G. Kennedy. Our representatives and other Carsonites were also attracted to Reno by news of the great conflagration. Win. McQuay, E. C. Bishop, Charles Palmer, W. Hemmaway and several others from the Comstock were also with us. The ranchers for ten miles around came in and rendered valuable aid in removing furniture from the path of the fire.

Taking Advantage of Misfortune.

While the great majority of those with wagons, drays, etc., worked nobly to save property, there were some individuals so lost to the dictates of humanity as to extort a dozen prices for hauling off goods and furniture. One man got a team to haul a few things out of the fire's course, and was charged $5 for five minutes' work. He refused to pay any such outrageous sum, when the teamster started to haul the furniture back into the fire. The other drew a pistol and at its muzzle made the driver unload his property. Another called to the driver of a team to stop and take on a trunk and some bundles, but the driver said he didn't have time. A cocked pistol made him find time to stop and take them on.

Up to 1 o'clock this afternoon 66 families had applied for relief. These families represent from 300 to 200 persons. The relief committee continues to distribute food and clothing to the destitute.

F. C. Association.

The trustees of the Farmers' Cooperative Association held a meeting to-day and resolved to repair their store and resume business as early as possible. They request all parties indebted to them to make immediate payment. See official notice elsewhere.

mencement of this action, which said action has failed and neglected and now do fail and neglect to provide for the plaintiff the com-of the issue of said marriage and no common property. Plaintiff prays to be restored to her maiden name and to costs, all of which will more fully appear from the complaint
